Statement In Response to Public Knowledge Ex Parte

Globalstar has made it a priority to meet with the parties interested in the TLPS proceeding to find common ground. We are particularly grateful for the productive dialogue we've had with the public interest community, and our September 10 filing reflected a number of their ideas.

Today's Public Knowledge letter is another step forward, offering creative and thoughtful insights, including the acknowledgment that TLPS "does potentially confer significant benefit to the unlicensed space." We hope it will help the FCC move forward promptly to adopt the rules it proposed over two years ago. The FCC's new rules will enable us to increase broadband capacity quickly and relieve significant wireless congestion.
